By November of that year, she had to have a forequarter amputation of her right arm, scapula and clavicle.

But with all her grit and determination, Rylee has taken the trauma of the past year and has turned it into a positive.

Swimming out of the Matamata Swim Club under coach Graeme Laing, she has worked hard to find her way in the pool again.

'All the training and hard work has paid off," she told The Profile.

"It's been so worth it. I'm really proud of myself for never giving up.

"I have to be honest, I have had a lot of tears in my goggles, but my motivation always kicks in to wipe them away."

Rylee said she was "over-whelmed" to find out she'd been selected to compete as an Aquablack at the swimming championships - held from September 21-27 in Singapore.

She said she cried with joy alongside her mum, Amanda, and a close friend who gave her "a big hug".

"I am beyond grateful to have the opportunity to represent New Zealand," she said.

"I honestly never thought about it until I lost my arm.

"It was then that my determination stepped up another level and my confidence grew in believing in myself and that I could achieve it.

Thames Coast home

AWaiomu home was destroyed by fire last week. A Thames Volunteer Fire Brigade spokesperson said firefighters were called to a fire in Waiomu on the Thames Coast at 17:48 on June 4, which they responded to with the Tapu Volunteer Fire Brigade.

The Thames brigade said it received information enroute that the house was well alight. so fire brigades at Puriri, Paeroa and Turua were also called. "Due to the fact that there was no reticulated water where we were heading, we needed lots of water, so we had three tankers to support the firefighting (Puriri, Tapu and Paeroa).

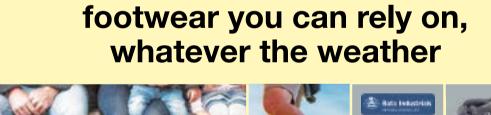

Thanks to everyone who helped us extinguish fire, everyone who kept their distance at the scene to allow us to do our job, and to the locals who provided extra information to the team as we made our way there.

No injuries were reported.

Board chair says new home needed for MSD

By KELLEY TANTAU, Public Interest

Thames' Community Board Chair is urging the Ministry of Social Development to seize the opportunity to move into a building better suited for meeting the community's needs.

While the ministry acknowledged that its current offices in Wintec, off Queen St, were "not ideal," it stressed that alternative options were being explored.

Board chair Adrian Catran told The Profile that since the Ministry of Social Development [MSD] moved from its Pollen St address in November, 2023, due to building damage, there had been "no action or clear communication" on when the service will return to fully meeting local needs.

"Our community was deeply affected by the loss of the excellent MSD services and facilities on Pollen St, where the interaction with the community and clients was outstanding," he said.

"The wider Thames region needs the MSD service more than any other community in New Zealand, making it imperative that MSD secure a permanent building.

"From there, we can restore the exceptional service we once had."

Mr Catran said the current Thames' Ministry of Social Development is currently operating out of the Wintec building off Queen St.

Wintec building was "just not fit for purpose" and offered very little privacy for people needing advice.

He also understood it was difficult to have a decent security system in place, plus other "minor challenges around dampness".

"Our elderly population deserves to be well cared for," he said "The Thames-Coromandel district has the highest population of over 65s in the country. We also need to ensure we can support others to support themselves.

"All we need now is for MSD to do the right thing and make it happen."

Mr Catran said the former Idea Services building in Willoughby St was "as good as one will get other than a purposebuilt building", and called for the ministry to make the move.

"MSD are more deserving in the way of a decent building," he said, "and security plus privacy for both staff and clients."

The Ministry of Social Development's regional commissioner for Waikato Tracey Smith said that the current office at 414 Queen St was "not ideal" -

"The tender closed on February 10, 2025, but it didn't result in a suitable replacement building for our Thames Service Centre," she said.

"We are now exploring other options for suitable permanent premises."

She said staff continued to see people for face-to-face appointments and help people over the phone. People could also drop off documents to the Queen St site.

"If anyone who needs to meet with us is concerned about privacy or accessibility, we encourage them to let us know so we can make suitable arrangements

"The Queen St site has an alternative entrance which can be used if needed, and we can meet with clients in a separate, private room if needed."

Students lead the way with new business

By KELLEY TANTAU, Public Interest Journalism funded by NZ On Air

With silage wrap often ending up "burnt or buried", a group of innovative students from Hauraki Plains College is turning the agricultural waste into ecofriendly dog leashes.

Their company, Re-Leashed, was formed as part of the Young Enterprise Scheme (YES), but for Alyssia Cochran, Ruby Green, Olivia Cammell, Kayla Geaney, Poppie Balm, and Natara Cochran, it's not just about business - it's about leading the way in sustainability.

Paeroa shines onscreen for TV commercial

By ALICE PARMINTER, Public Interest Journalism funded by NZ On Air

Paeroa's Queen St and Princes St were transformed into a film set over the weekend, as car company Toyota turned the quiet side streets into a busy intersection for an advertising campaign.

The film shoot took place on June 6-9, with the facades of the businesses in the street transformed into an architect's office and bakery.

Extra filming also took place in other areas, including the Ohinemuri Club on Normanby Rd, and outside the Paeroa Sports Club on Towers St.

The weather was changeable during the shoot, but Paeroa's volunteer fire brigade was on standby to keep the road wetted down for a consistent look.

The film shoot brought several people into Paeroa for the four days they were on site, staying at local hotels and eating at local businesses.

Around 30 extras were also hired from Paeroa and the surrounding towns.

Toyota said the aim of the campaign was to celebrate mobility in New Zealand.

"We're excited to be in Paeroa and appreciate the support of the community," a Toyota spokesperson said.

Paeroa was chosen for its location and how it fits with what the filming is aiming to achieve. Given Paeroa is a smaller town, the disruption of closing roads also has less impact than on larger towns and cities.

"Toyota hope that the Paeroa community are proud to be hosting the crew over a few days as they film."

The spokesperson said the shoot involved "a respected production team, local authorities, and high-profile New Zealanders who reflect our values".

Toyota would not confirm when the campaign would air.

Overgrown trees can cause power outages

Trees in power lines cause up to 1 in 5 power cuts on our network each year.

Overgrown trees and falling branches can damage power lines, cause outages, and make it harder for us to restore power. They can also pose a significant fire risk. That's why it's important to plant trees and shrubs well away from power lines and to regularly maintain any vegetation on your property.

At Powerco, we keep an eye on trees growing near our power lines. If your tree is within the growth limit zone we will give you a 'cut or trim' notice because your tree is too close. Working near power lines is extremely dangerous, and can lead to serious injury or electrocution, you must use an approved contractor to carry out the work.

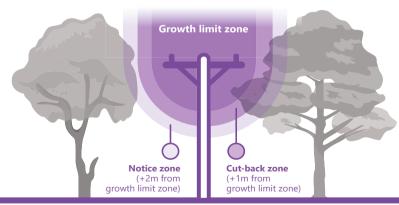

Once the trimming is done, you need to let us know. If you don't use a Powerco approved contractor, or fail to notify us that the work is complete, you could be fined up to $10,000, plus an additional $500 for every day the work remains undone.

Help us keep the power on - plant smart, trim responsibly, and always stay safe around power lines.

For more information and to find an approved contractor, visit: powerco.co.nz/safety/tree-safety-near-power-lines

Clear to the sky

If your tree is growing within the Cut-Back or Notice Zone (Tree A) you may get a notice saying your trees must be trimmed soon because they're getting too close to power lines.

If your tree reaches the Growth Notice Zone (Tree B) you'll get a notice requiring it to be trimmed. Check our website for a list of approved contractors.

Aspiring to leadership and community change ormer Waihī College student Sarah Keall is heading to the 19th Annual Aspiring Leaders Forum in Wellington, thanks to sponsorship from Hauraki District Council.

Twenty-one-year-old Sarah, who has just completed a degree in Political Science and Communications at Victoria University, was awarded a $1691.50 grant from the council in aid of attending the fo-

She told The Profile she was excited about the opportunity.

"I grew up in Waihī - I went to Waihī College and I've always been part of the Waihī community. Part of the reason that I went into studying politics was because I saw that there were these issues or changes that could be made within the community," she said.

'I wanted to develop skills to facilitate those changes, so I'm definitely interested in being able to apply some of the skills from attending this forum and taking them back to the community and making a positive difference.

The forum, which takes place on August 21-24, will see around 100 young New Zealanders between the ages of 18 and 26 receive mentoring and participate in workshops

Sarah Keall will be expanding on her leadership skills at the Aspiring Leaders Forum in Wellington. and networking events to build live for something greater than their leadership skills. It is a non-political event, with the aim of teaching young people to self-interest. "We'll be spending time with Members of Parliament, international guests, business and community leaders. We will be doing some community service including outdoor work," Sarah

"It's just a chance for likeminded young people who have been giving back to the community and want to have an opportunity to connect and expand on that, to get together and learn about what each other is doing."

Sarah was nominated for the forum by Waihī councillor Anne-Marie Spicer, who said at a council meeting that she felt Sarah had a great potential bright future ahead of her.

I'm very thankful to Hauraki District Council for being so generous and offering to sponsor me and help me get there because I wouldn't get there without them," Sarah said.

'In the future I'd like to settle [in Waihī] again but for now it's just trying to get some good experience under my belt and learn all the really important skills to make those positive and sustainable changes to help the community.'

Sarah was also a recipient of the council's ONYA award in 2021 for her services to the Waihī community, including as a volunteer at Keep Waihī Beautiful cleanups, community sport events and school events: as a Waihī Leos member; and for her in-school leadership roles.

Brewery landmark demolished for bowling club

As part of a Valley Profile series MEGHAN HAWKES searches through old newspapers to bring you the stories Thames Valley locals once read about themselves.

The last of an old Thames land-mark – the chimney of Camp-bell and Ehrenfried's brewery was demolished to make way for the Thames Bowling Club.

Many years previously the brewery had been destroyed by fire but the chimney remained standing. The bowling club had lately acquired the site which adjoined the green and great improvements were anticipated. The club was considered a really live organisation with a membership of about 130 and just one sub-scription unpaid, thanks to the vigilant treasurer.

Meanwhile, a Thames Valley lightning storm caused a good deal of dismay. At Paeroa, a house in Buchanan St was struck by lightning, knocking an iron chimney over and tearing weather boards off. The occupants were not injured, but received a great fright, and took shelter with their neighbours. At several houses windows were broken, and at one house two iron chimneys fell, lamps were broken, and the house shook alarmingly. Paeroa's electric lights were extinguished early in the evening, and the town was practically in darkness. Mrs Walls, passing along the road at Komata, had a tree just behind her splin-ter causing her great distress. The storm raged at Thames where torrential rain spoilt a quickstep competition. Electric wires fused, the borough installation was blown out and a telephone wire cut. Two cows were killed by lighten-ing at Kihikihi and a settler in the Kauaeranga Valley, while turning on a tap in his cowshed, received an electric shock that temporarily paralysed his arm. The storm started at 2.30pm and lasted, with intervals, until 11.15pm.

Over at Netherton, which until recently had been a lonely Cinderella among the district settlements, change was slowly coming. Prior to the formation of the main Netherton road had been partly under the control of the Thames County Council and partly under Ohinemuri. Each council regarded the place as a fag-end, and so spent very little money on the roads, which were in a shocking condition. The telephone service was also a long way behind the 'talking by wire' facilities available in other settlements. There was a phone bureau, but no partylines or general reticulation to the farmhouses. Consequently, it was a case of wearily awaiting your turn at Netherton, even if life or death depended on your getting a message through quickly.

Settlers were encouraged to take things into their own hands and force the Department to pro-vide adequate telephone facilities. Likewise, while allowing the new county council sufficient time to 'get into its stride,' they must impress councillors the necessity of getting a move on.

Meanwhile at Waihī the decline of the mining industry had seen hundreds of houses removed from there and Waikino and Karangahake. Waihī was recovering some of its composure, and despite it never being the Waihī of old again, agricultural and pastoral industries were being developed there. The mining days had left legacies to Waihī which other towns might envy, such as fine avenues of trees and the domain.

Now there was a shortage of houses at Waihī, and some people were kicking themselves because they had not been optimistic enough to purchase and retain a number of the fine buildings that had been taken elsewhere

It's some-bunny's hoppy happy birthday

By ALICE PARMINTER, Public Interest Journalism funded by NZ On Air

Rodger Rabbit is a distinguished elderly gentleman, but he still has a bit of spring in his step.

The mini lop/chinchilla cross will be celebrating his 13th birthday on June 12: a remarkable feat for a rabbit, owner Christine Boldero said.

"Everyone I've spoken to [says] they're five to ten years max.

And the smaller the rabbit, the longer the lifespan.

Roger's quite big, he's two and a half kilos. So for him to live that long... I think he's pretty rare to make that age," she said.

Christine, a vet nurse based in Waihī, said Rodger joined her family when he was only a few months old.

"He was one of our very first rescues - he was found in a dog park," she said.

"We tried to find the owners and we couldn't, so we ended up taking him home."

Rodger very quickly became one of the clan, hanging out with both the family and their many animals - they have cats and chinchillas, along with rescue kittens and pigeons.

"He's been my daughter's best buddy since she was tiny... she's 14 now, turning 15, so he's been a big part of her life,"

Rodger Rabbit snuggles up to another rescue animal. TOP RIGHT: Christine's daughter, Kimberly, at ages three and 14 with Rodger.

Christine said.

"[He's] also been company for many of our rescue animals. His best mate is a white pigeon that we rescued and raised. They still hang out together now."

Rodger also has a bit of a personality, Christine said.

"He's a bit of a Houdini. I think that's why they found him on the dog field, because he manages to get out of cages." Christine reckoned Rodger's

Christine reckoned Rodger's longevity could mostly be attributed to the care she takes with him.

"I'm particular with the husbandry, everything's spotless all the time," she said.

"Rabbits are quite high maintenance, people don't realize that they do take a lot of looking after.
"He's had the best treatment.

I'm a vet nurse, so whenever he's sick, I get on to it straight away."

These days though, Rodger is definitely feeling his age.

"He's completely blind now in one eye and he's on medication to stop him falling over," th Rodger. Photos: SUPPLIED Christine said.

"Sadly he is deteriorating and won't see another birthday, so this birthday is a very special one.

"He will get very spoilt, and when he passes he will leave a huge hole in our hearts."

Testing our defences: closing the floodgate

By ALICE PARMINTER, Public Interest Journalism funded by NZ On Air

There were grey skies and a bit of drizzle in Paeroa on June 4, but nothing to suggest any risk of flooding. Passersby might have been confused then, to see a 2.7 metre high floodgate closing in south of the Criterion Bridge.

The Criterion Floodgate, part of Paeroa's flood protection system, was the subject of a training exercise by Waikato Regional Council workers to ensure as many staff as possible would be able to operate the gates in the case of an emergency.

Council's scheme unit lead, Hayden McGregor, said it was important for redundancy.
"This is our number one critical element or asset that we need to look after, so having a range of people skilled in that responding space is good," he said

"For my team here, it's their first priority, and if they are shut then people have to stay here and mon-itor it. [But] it's a chance to get a batch of new young staff as well trained up, and able to respond if we do get people out of the local area for whatever reason."

The Profile was invited along to get a first-hand look at the gate's operation. For this exercise, only one half of the gate was shut to allow traffic to still traverse the bridge. However, the two sides operate in exactly the same way, and Hayden said it would take less than 20 minutes to completely close and seal the gate in a flood

The actual operation of the gate was fairly simple: panels were removed to allow staff to connect the gate's hydraulics; a winch was attached on both sides; and the gate was slightly raised before being slid forward.

Once it was fully extended it was bolted to the ground, and metal arms extended to brace the gate against the force of gushing flood-waters. The gate was also lowered again, forming a watertight seal at ground level.

When fully closed, the gate fills the gap in Paeroa's defensive stopbank system where the road runs through. On the town side of the bridge, the stopbank gap would still need to be filled the olds we head into the new season, it's easy to get caught up in the day-to-day demands of calving and farm management.

Stay ahead this season: Proactive animal health

However, maintaining a proactive approach will help prevent larger issues from occurring and remain on track for strong production and reproductive success.

The transition of cows from dry to milking has a significant impact on their ability to reach peak milk production and return to calving.

The use of diet calculators. feed budgets, and spring rotation planners, alongside feed and blood tests, allows for the adjustment of nutrient intake in response to changing pasture conditions relevant to this season.

For mastitis prevention and udder health, as most mastitis infections are introduced around the time a cow calves, ensure prevention strategies are part of the routine for freshly calved cows.

This includes: keeping springers and colostrum cows on the cleanest pasture available; milk cows as soon as possible after calving; strip quarters daily to identify and treat mastitis early; keep tails quality, tested, warm colostrum within the first four to six hours after birth is crucial for building immunity.

Good nutrition continues with milk requirements calculated based on requirements for maintenance and desired growth rates, alongside access to fresh water and high-quality meal from day one.

Additional proactive steps include: calving into the cleanest and most sheltered paddocks available; collection of calves as soon as possible after birth; spraying navels with iodine before transport; close attention to shed hygiene as the season progresses.

With good plans in place and attention to detail, you're setting yourself up for a smooth calving.

However, if challenges arise, don't hesitate to reach out to your veterinarian - we're here to support you.

The sooner issues are identified, and changes to preventative measures are implemented, the smaller the overall impact will be.

All the best for the season

Conviction prompts effluent system reminder

A recent conviction for unlawful dairy effluent discharges has prompted a reminder from Waikato Regional Council for farmers to ensure they have good effluent management systems.

TV CILIB RUGBY

PROPS AND FAIRY TALES Club Wrap Round 9 : June 7, 2025 By Tighthead Ted and Whispering Will on the keyboards

What a dream weekend for ole Tighthead Ted - three props celebrating milestones for their respective teams - Whangamata's Brad Laurenson bringing up TWO HUNDRED matches for Whangamata, and Waihi Athletics' Jay Wood and Matty Pettard bringing up their half centuries for Waihi. These blokes are genuine props too, pre-season training entails, "Hey love, where are my boots, I've got a game today". Grassroots legends, well done men, THT salutes you.

Love fest over - the rugby, upsets, sublime rugby, Dr Dunn battles, the round had it all. First up, the upset in Whangamata, where the home team and the visiting Thames had a match for the ages. A to-and-fro battle between two teams that threw everything at each other. Thames were staunch in defence and Whangamata were persistent right until the end in an encounter both teams can be proud of.

Whangamata got away to a flier, scoring through Lewis Doherty after nice hands from midfielders Connor Emerson and Joe Perawiti. Thames responded by putting their big boys to work. Their direct running was tough for Whangamata to handle and they reaped two tries as a result.

The halftime score was 20-7 and

The halftime score was 20-7 and Whangamata, who had been missing their first up tackles, must have known they had enough in them to turn it around in the second half. There were tireless efforts from forwards such as Hamish Boult who, not being one of the biggest 6s going around, ran hard and courageously all day into the big Thames forward pack, alongside Tupou Tonga and Coen Oliver who weathered tackle after tackle as they trundled the ball up into some ferocious defence

With Thames scoring shortly after the half time break, Laulea Ma'u being unstoppable from 25 metres, and the score blowing out to 25-7 to the visitors it looked like game over.

A penalty try was awarded to Whangamata when an eager Tangi Utumoengalu intercepted a cut out pass that was destined to reach his unmarked opposite.

The only problem was he was a mile offside and he was duly yellow carded. That put wind in the Whangamata sails. Their lineout drive from a few metres out picked up a head of steam and when it collapsed over the try line, and all the big men got up and the crowd saw the ball in the hands of two-hundred game Brad Laurenson, there was an almighty cheer, and the Red 'n' Whites were back in the match.

Shortly after another lineout drive saw hooker Jack O'Halloran, who had one of his best games in the red n white jersey, score to give Whangamata their first lead of the match with only five to go - the fairy tale ending for veteran Brad Laurenson looked on the books. The play for Whangamata was simple:

The play for Whangamata was simple: secure the kick off and with the thunderous boot of Logan Allen and with the wind behind them, thump the ball downfield as far as possible and set up camp for the rest of the game. But they failed at the first stage, when Thames' kick off found grass and possession was handed over to them. A midfield move ended in a falcon that found the hands of an unmarked Sili Tongotongo who dotted down to regain Thames' one point advantage.

Thames must have thought they had the game. With the despondent on-lookers resigned to Whangamata suffering another narrow loss, there was yet another twist in this seesawing affair. Whangamata pounded away at Thames who threw everything at them in defence. But, with the clock ticking towards eighty, the shaky Whangamata scrum dug deep and secured a penalty, and after a quick tap, the ball eventually found Jack O'Halloran with nothing but the tryline in front of him, and the resulting conversion was a formality that secured Whangamata the win. The win keeps Whangamata's faint playoff hopes alive, while Thames will have their work cut out if they want to be playing semi-final rugby in a few weeks' time - they'll certainly have to cut their penalty rate - referee Ryan Rogers went through three whistles through the 80 minutes.

A quick drive over the hill to Waihi saw a cracker of a match between Waihi Athletic and the visiting Mercury Bay side. Waihi with something to prove after having their winning streak broken while visiting the mighty Marlins a few weeks ago. They did it in style too, racking up 52 points, but also conceding 35 in a ding dong battle.

In a match played in perfect conditions, both sides played hard, fast rugby that had the supporters on the edges of their seats for the full 80. Waihi were all over the visitors in the first half, but every time Waihi looked to have the match put away, the young visiting side would come back and keep themselves in touching distance.

Mercury Bay pulled back to within ten early in the second half, and it was game on, but the experience of the Waihi team, with Collard at ten directing affairs along with his faithful halfback Finlay Davenport, the home team was always doing enough to win. The visitors though, with workhorses Connor McVerry and to be sure, to be sure, Adam Coyle to the fore made Waihi work bloody hard for their after match giggle-juices.

In such a free flowing match it's hard to pick standout players, when the skill levels are maxed out, and it's punch and counter punch, as every player looks good. But there are always some that seem to be always close to the ball, and for Waihi it was once again Kenan Gilson, always about three inches from the ball, and the hard running Lesen Huiarangi, who dotted down for three tries in a cracking performance. Dylan Bower was all class for the shandy drinkers, showcasing all the skills that a midfielder should possess, as well as being a hard bugger to bring down when the occasion called for it. Colville Green and Tom Larke led the way out the back for the visitors, Larke kicking 100% as the Marlins fought their way back into the game.

At this stage of the season it is going to take a team playing out of their sin for 80 minutes to stop Waihi taking their second McClinchy in a row.

Through the Karangahake Gorge we go for the next match, where Paeroa hosted Hauraki North for the Andy Silvester Memorial Cup. With the sun shining everyone would have been expecting showboat festival rugby. But not to be, the ground was still pretty wet from the rain through the week, and the first spell saw more drops and handling errors than Bucky McCallum pulled hamstrings. Thankfully things came good in the Thankfully things came good in the second spell and a bit of rugby was enjoyed by all. Perhaps not so much by North though as for the visitors it was a game where every bounce of the ball went the wrong way, every 50-50 call went the way of the home team, and if something could go wrong, it did. They did not give in though and as they have all season they made Paeroa work hard for the points. The scrum and lineout battle was fairly even, both teams having their moments, but neither really gaining ascendancy. The backlines were deadheating too, although with Hendrix Beazley moving into first five Paeroa looked more dangerous through the last 40.

For the Green machine they were well led up front by under-rated prop, and captain Johnson McKain who had a whale of a game capped off with a much deserved five pointer. He was ably supported, as always by the energiser bunny Oshea Te Oka-Cox at openside, and his loose forward partner Misi Tupai Palea. Out the back none were better than Bitner! Bitner Johansson at fullback was lethal, his second try where he tip-toed down the sideline for 50 metres to score, raising interest from the flying Wallendas (look em up kids, interesting story). The visitors were ably served by vet-

The visitors were ably served by veteran Matty Fisher, who always saves his best for the Paeroa matches, along with Jason Hayward, who has had more clubs than Tiger Woods, playing at number eight and had a boomer. Logan Mitchell moved out to centre was his usual polished self, keeping North in the mix for much of the match.

The final scoreline of 34-17, six tries to three an accurate reflection of the match.

The next match on the block was the world famous, in Te Aroha, Dr Dunn clash. It never matters where CO-BRAS and Waihou lie on the points table, when they hit the field for the Dr Dunn, all bets are off. And so it proved, Waihou looked to always have the match in control through the first 30 minutes, but couldn't convert to points, the Snakes just kept hanging in there, and probably enjoyed the better of the middle portion of the match before they ran out of steam in the final 20 for Waihou to take the match, and the Dr Dunn 26-16.

The COBRAS who have struggled all season to get results should be pretty happy with their days efforts, their defensive lineout causing havoc for Waihou, and their scrum having an edge also. Cam Dromgool and Etonia Naba led the ferocious forward assault, and Naba slotted out to the wing later in the match and proved hard to contain there too. Sergio Schuler was business as usual at fullback, safe as houses. While not winning this week, if they keep on this trajectory, a win against Paeroa next week is not off the cards at all - COBRAS are an upset waiting to happen, if they get a game when everything clicks, they could beat anyone. Waihou did enough across the board with what they had to take the win, but will have plenty to work on as they prepare to host Mercury Bay next week.

For the Dr Dunn winners, handy games from the ever improving Thomas Came, who is getting better each week as he learns the dark arts of tighthead propping. Dev Sheehan, still with his first five trainer wheels on, is also looking more comfortable each week, and Bronson Wilson-Beech, who has shifted out to the wing, was hard to control.

āuanui's rising star set for surfing worlds

By KELLEY TANTAU, Public Interest Journalism funded by NZ On Air

Pāuanui surfer will be one Aof six "bold" youths representing New Zealand at the ISA World Surfing Games in El Salvador later this year.
Surfing New Zealand announced last week that Lola Groube would be part of the squad heading to Central America for the Games, held from September 5-14.

They said the 13-year-old's fearless surfing and flawless turns" had made her a "standout" in national competitions, and that she brought "fresh energy and raw potential to the team".

Lola, who is part of the surf academy at Whangamatā Area School, as well as the Whangamata Boardriders, earlier told The Profile she started surfing when she was just three-years-old, moving into the competitive circuit at age 10. "Every surf is different and I really love that," she said.

Where we live there are a lot of small waves, so we have to travel a bit so I can learn more and get comfortable surfing larger waves and reef breaks, which can be tricky.

Surfing New Zealand said this year's team marked "a new era" for New Zealand surfing, featuring some of the nation's "most exciting up-and-coming surfers who have proven their readiness to compete against the world's best".

"With the majority of the team in their teens or early 20s, the squad reflects the energy and talent of a new generation rising through the ranks.

'Competing at La Bocana and El Sunzal, two of Central America's most iconic point breaks, these six young surfers will wear the silver fern with pride and determination.'

While the 2025 team may be vouthful, New Zealand's legacy at the ISA World Surfing Games is a long and proud one.

Kiwi surfers have competed in the event since the 1960s, and at the 2024 ISA World Surfing Games in Puerto Rico, New Zealand placed 18th overall in a field of more than 50 countries.

Not every hill is worth dying

By MICHAEL WILKES s a kid, I was a Abit of a weird one. I had this strange fascination with bees.

While most kids were running from them, I'd be crouched near the flowers watching them do their thing — collecting pollen, to-tally unbothered by the world.

And here's where it gets real odd. I used to sneak up and gently cup my hands around them.

Just hold them there. Let them buzz around inside my hands for a bit. And then, if I was feeling cheeky, I'd release one right in front of someone just to give them

But funny thing — I never once got stung doing that.
It was like the bees knew they weren't under threat. They were ust doing their job. No panic. No drama. Just chill.

Fast forward to the other day -I did get stung by a bee.

And it hit different this time. I stopped and thought about what just happened. Because when a honeybee stings, it dies. That's a massive sacrifice. But see, bees don't live as individuals.

They work as one - a swarm. A unit. Everything they do is for the good of the hive. So if they sting, it's not random. It's to protect the bigger purpose.

But when they're alone and feel threatened, instinct kicks in. Logic

They're not defending the hive anymore. They're just reacting.

And they end up dying on a hill that wasn't worth it.

It got me thinking about how we act sometimes. Me included.

We're part of a team — a family, a work crew, a community. We're trying to head in the same direction. But along the way, someone has a different idea of how to get there. And suddenly, we're clashWe stop listening. We dig in.

We argue not because it's the right way, but because it's our way. We lose sight of the vision.

We sting, and no one wins.

Like the bee, our passion takes over but our purpose slips away. So here's the thought: not every hill is worth dying on.

Sometimes keeping unity matters more than being right.

Sometimes the best thing we can do is step back, breathe, and ask: Is this really worth it?

Because if we sting every time things don't go our way, we risk losing the very thing we were trying to protect all along

Hunts Home Kills' Mike Wright says barbecue cuts are "booming".

Top Service at Hunts Home Kills unts Home Kills, based on the flanks of Paeroa, aims to provide top quality meats and pride in their products.

The home kill business butchers and packages animals slaughtered on farms using Nick's Onsite Killing Services to customers' requirements.

Mike Wright, who has owned Hunts Home Kills for around a decade, said they worked with many types of animal carcasses.

"There's a full list on the website - you can go through from pigs, sheep and beef... and we process a lot of wild game especially during hunting seasons.

"We also do a full range of small goods, bacon, ham, flavoured sausages, kransky, chorizo, salami, biersticks and meat pat-

"As long as everything goes well, everyone's rapt, that's probably why we're so busy.

Mike said Hunts Home Kills had always aimed to be a "step ahead" with vacuum packing, which makes meat last longer in the freezer. "We're also getting right into our barbecue cuts... and they're booming at the moment," he said.

Protest 'first of ma

Agroup of protestors set up outside Thames-Coromandel MP Scott Simpson's Thames office at 12.30 on May 30. The event was advertised as "protesting government attacks on our communities", and invited locals to bring along all their issues in vited locals to bring along all their issues, including mining, poverty, pay parity, climate denial, budget cuts and more Thames' labour representative, Beryl Riley, said the protest was the first of many.

"People are really upset and angry... this government doesn't seem to be listening to the people, doesn't seem to be seeing the hardship of ordinary New Zealanders," she said. "We're seeing this as a way for people who are feeling angry and don't know what to do about it, to at least gather, meet like minds, have a chat."

Beryl said there were around 30 adults who attended the protest, along with 40 children from Thames South School Te Kura o Te Kauaeranga. She said they came from various Thames groups, including The Basket Hauraki, the combined trade union, Ngāti Maru, and others.

We had lots of people get up and speak," Beryl said. "[There was] a lot of concern about how this was not a budget that was helping ordinary people get ahead

They plan to hold a protest on the last Friday of each month.

Scott Simpson was not in Thames on the day of the protest. However, he told The Profile that people were always welcome to protest peacefully as a fundamental democratic right.

"The budget's gone down very well I think with most New Zealanders," he said.
"I get completely that Labour Party members and activists don't like what our government is doing but the simple fact is that we're cleaning up a mess that was the result of six years of economic mismanagement and it's going to take us some time to put that right."

Hauraki's Cooper flies fast, finishes first

MOTOCROSS

By DAVIDDA HIKATANGATA

Cooper Young's motocross dreams are to always have fun and "do my best".

His passion clearly paid off when he clinched the number one spot for the 12-16 years 125cc class at the 2025 New Zealand TT Nationals Competition at Fullers Farm in Taupiri on May 3-4.

Even though the motocrossmad rider qualified in 15th place - he went on to finish the event with a first, second and third, and two fourth placings, plus snapped up the overall first place in his class.

The Hauraki Plains College year 10 student, who rides for the school team, told The Profile his final race was a combination of the best and most challenging races of the entire event.

"I was tied with another competitor and whoever won that race won the overall points - and I bet him... I was stoked.

"It was good for me to deal with the pressure of having a tied race, to push me to ride harder."

However, the biggest challenge was when he had to get up and catch his competitor after he hit a berm too hard, crashed and lost his first place position, he said.

The young rider's training routine leading up to the TT Nationals consisted of Monday swims, two gym visits a week and a ride day, he said.

His strategy was to "ride as hard as I can" and stay on his bike.

The motocross champ's journey into the sport started when he got his first bike at age five.

The 14-year-old said he learned how to ride at home and started to compete at motocross tracks when he was around eight years old.

"Motocross is in the family so it was a natural thing for me to compete."

And when it came to mentors in motocross, the young rider didn't need to look far as "both sides of my family" were his biggest influences.

Technique was something Cooper said he'd worked on and sorted, and now was focussed on speed.

But the two-wheeled thrillseeker has his eye on another competition.

Some of the Hauraki Plains College motocross team would travel to Foxton to race in the Gold Coast Motocross Club Secondary Schools Competition for round three of the New Zealand Battle of the Schools Series, he said.

"My sights are set on winning the 12-14 year 125cc class."

Cooper said he liked to thank his mum and dad for always getting him to the tracks.

"My sponsors are Triple 8 Training, Mr Motorcycles, P1 Moto, Slater Contracting, Bridgestone Tyres Morrinsville."

His top two pieces of advice for other young riders was to focus on fitness and "having fun", he said.
